Chapter 341: The Clash of Titans

Within the endless expanse of the Void, Sung Jin-Woo stood as the last line of defense against Xytheron, the Abyssal Devourer. The battle between them had already begun to reshape the fabric of the multiverse. Waves of primordial shadows clashed with torrents of chaotic abyss, creating bursts of energy that illuminated the infinite darkness.

The Divine Triad's Preparation

While Sung Jin-Woo fought in the Void, Ashborn and Sung Su-Ho ensured that no realm was left unguarded.

Ashborn, with his ten celestial wings radiating divine energy, commanded the Planets of the Apostles to shield the Divine Trees. He sent half of the Apostles of God and the Heavenly Soldiers to reinforce the outermost boundaries of the Absolute Realm.

Sung Su-Ho rallied the Dragonkins and Fiery Dragon Lords, ordering them to guard the Shadow Abyss and the central realms. His Draconic Divine Spear pulsed with power as he prepared to lead a counteroffensive should the battle spill into their domains.

The Abyssal Onslaught

In the Demon Realm, the Abyssal Demons attempted to overrun the Purifier Tree, but Esil Radiru and the emissary stationed there unleashed devastating counterattacks. Their efforts purified thousands of corrupted demons, turning them into allies against the Abyssal Shades.

In the Chaos World, the fourteenth clone coordinated with the seven emissaries. Each monarch’s realm faced invasions, but with the combined strength of their forces and Sung Jin-Woo’s divine blessings, the Void Gates were sealed one by one.

The Shadow God’s Might

Back in the Void, Xytheron’s chaotic form grew larger, its tendrils lashing out in all directions. Each strike shattered fragments of space, yet Sung Jin-Woo stood unfazed.

Xytheron: “Your shadows cannot extinguish the Abyss. You will fall, and your precious realms will follow!”

Sung Jin-Woo’s eyes glowed with an intense light as he activated the Absolute Crown and summoned the Scepter of Dominion. The combination of these divine artifacts amplified his power exponentially.

Sung Jin-Woo: “Fall? I am the Shadow God. The Abyss is nothing more than a shadow waiting to be claimed.”

With a wave of the Scepter, Shadow Chains erupted from the Void, binding Xytheron’s form. The Abyssal Devourer roared in defiance, attempting to break free, but the chains absorbed its chaotic energy, weakening it further.

The Turning Point

Despite the chains, Xytheron revealed its trump card—a Core of Chaos, a pulsating mass of energy that threatened to explode and annihilate the entire multiverse.

Sung Jin-Woo placed his hand over the four divine jewels embedded in his body. The jewels resonated, drawing energy from every realm he had blessed. His voice echoed with absolute authority.
Sung Jin-Woo: “This ends now.”

He unleashed the full power of the Shadow Dominion, creating an immense Shadow Singularity that began to consume the Core of Chaos. The singularity grew, devouring Xytheron piece by piece.

Victory at a Cost

As the battle reached its climax, the Void began to collapse around them. Xytheron let out a final, guttural scream as it was completely consumed by the Shadow Singularity. The Void Gates across the multiverse vanished, and the Abyssal Shades disintegrated.

However, the strain on Sung Jin-Woo’s body was immense. The four divine jewels pulsed erratically, struggling to contain the power he had unleashed.

The Aftermath

The Void stabilized, and Sung Jin-Woo returned to the Absolute Realm. His form flickered momentarily, but he quickly regained his composure. Ashborn and Sung Su-Ho greeted him with relief.

Ashborn: “The Abyssal Devourer is no more. But at what cost?”
Sung Jin-Woo: “The cost was necessary. The multiverse stands, and so do we.”
